Minor Evans and George Blake Held for the Abduction of Susie McCall

GROCER CREIGHTON'S EALANCE.

A Female Thief Shrieks as She Is Led from Court.

Minor Evans and George Blake were brought be fore Judge Donohue, in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday, upon orders of arrest granted on the ap-plication of Mr. Elbridge T. Gerry, based on affivits of Messrs, Jenkins and Chiardi, of the Society or the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Some 142 Cherry street Susie McCall, an interesting child, seven years old, living with Minor Evans and his wife, Jane Evans. The mother of the child, as the silidavits further allege, was in the Penitentiary, and Evans almost continually drunk. On these acts Judge Donohue committed the child to the cusody of the Sisters of St. Dominick, in New Jersey, Seorge Blake, who claims to be a brother of the child, stole her a week ago from the institution, after which he was arrested and taken before a Justice in New Jersey, who allowed him to retain custody of the child. Upon these new developments Judge Donohue granted the order of arrest referred to, which order also included one for the arrest of Mrs. Evans, but she, having gone to New Jersey and taken the child with her, is still free. She refused to give the child up, claiming that the child's mother made the girl a present to her. Blake is charged with kidnapping the child and Evans with abetting the scheme. Evans said he was willing to give up the child but could not do so, as his wife absolutely refused to surrender hor. Judge Lonohue held Evans and Blake in $1,000 each and the papers were sent before the Grand Jury. Meantime, neasures have been taken to arrest Mrs. Evans and gain possession of the girl.

SWIFT JUSTICE. Mesers. Bennet & Becker brought an action last August against a grocer named Creighton, who had purchased over $2,000 worth of goods from them on open account, for a balance which the latter failed neral denial of all plaintiffs' allegations in implaint. The case having been moved on he special calendar came up in the Marine Court esterday before Judge McAdam and a jury, and Mr. Denis Spellissy, plaintiff's counsel, in a brief opening speech, called attention to the fact that defendant's inswer denied that the plaintiffs were co-partners at the time of the sale and delivery of the goods mentioned in the complaint, which idenial was, from the manner in which the complaint was framed, postive on that particular point, and proceeded to place his first witness upon the stand. Meantime, with characteristic brevity, Judge MoAdam had run his eyes over the litigant's pleadings, and turning to one of defendant's counsel, of whom he nad three, asked "What is the real defence sought to be put in?" Mr. Pinckney replied "We hiten to show, Your Honor, that the goods were not sold to the defendant but to a firm of which he was a member," "That is not a good defence under your answer, counselor," courtecusty replied the Judge, "If your antagonist is willing to admit for the purposes of the case at once," Mr. Spellissy expressed his entire willingness to admit for the purposes of the trial that the goods in question were sold to a firm of which the defendant was a member at the time; but, while making the admission, would object to the reception of that fact as evidence under the pleading. Judge McAdam upheld the objection, and directed a vardic in favor of the plaintiffs for the full amount claimes and interest, to which the Court added the coats with an allowance. The verdict was recorded withit ten minutes of the opening of the case.

TWENTY-TWO YEAR OLD SUIT As long ago as 1857 August Simmons, with Michael yan as surety, filed a bond for the faithful performard. About the same time two judgments were urers, and the execution being given to Simmons, the latter levied upon a horse which, as was subsequently claimed, belonged to John Redmond, Jr., who sued for the value of the horse, and in due time recovered a judgment against Simmons. The bond of the constable Simmons was then made the subject of litigation; and Simmons failed to appear. Byan, however, defended by a general denial. This litigation has been in the courts for over twenty-two years, and although the original subject of the trials was over a horse, the subsequent course of the law has been very expensive, it having been argued four times before the General Term and once before the Court of Appeals. The law points involved are most intricate and dependent, in a great measure, upon the construction to be given to an ancient act passed in 1813. The third trial before a jury was commenced yesterday before Judge Larremore in the Court of Common Pleas, and whether this modern Jarudyce vs. Jarudyce suit will ever be finally concluded is a problem that may or may not be solved by the present trial.

BAGGED ANTHOW,

George W. Heury, a sanctimonious looking indi-vidual, who gave his residence as No. 345 Second avenue, and his occupation as that of a brushmaker, was arraigned yesterday in the Court of General Sessions, by Assistant District Attorney Herring, on a charge of shoplifting. Jointly indicted with Henry for the same offence was a well known professional thief named Mary Gray. It appeared that on the 24th of November last Henry and his companion visited the establishment of Messrs. Person & Harrisited the establishment of Messrs. Person & Harriman, No. 457 Broome street. While Henry engaged the attention of one of the salesmen by exhibiting a sample piece of silk, stating he wanted a large quantity of the patient, Mary, who carried a large bag, quietly slipped into its recesses $120 worth of silk which lay on the counter. The thieves turned to leave, but, at once missing the goods, the salesman caused their arrest. On the way to the police station Mary fried to drop her bag, which was under her dross, but she was detected in the act. When called to the bar the prisoners pleaded guilty.

"Well," humorously rejoined Mr. Herring, "he as 'bagged' anyhow."
Being old oftenders Judge Gildersleeve sent Henry of the State Prison for three years and Mary Gray to the Pentiontiary for the same period. Mary yelled oudly as she left the court room

SUMMARY OF LAW CASES.

Isaac Meyers, a pedler, was arraigned in the Court of General Sessions yesterday, charged with receiving goods that had been stolen from H. B. Claffin & Co. by an errand boy, named James McElbinney, of Brooklyn. The prisoner pleaded guilty, and it being his first offence, Judge Gildersleeve sent him to the State Reformatory at Elmira.

Barke put in a new front to his store and when he moved sway he took part of the new front with him. Mr. Beach sued Mr. Burke to recover $300 damages for taking away the new front. The jury yesterday, before Judge Preedman in the Superior Court, decided in favor of the detendant.

In the Special Term of the Court of Common Pleus, yesterday, before Judge Van Hoesen, a motion came up upon newly discovered evidence for a new trial in the matter of Charles Pfaculler against the Sheriff. Mr. George W. Wilson, who appeared for the motion, submitted numerous affidavits which were sworn to ny the Sheriff not to have been known at the time of the trial, and upon which Mr. Wilson extensively elaborated. Mr. Henny Wehle, who appeared in opposition to the motion, contended that various other adjudications had upon the subject matter in issue before the Court should influence the result of this motion. Mr. Wilson suggested his willingness to submit the compaint and evidence upon the former trial, which the Judge indicated was more necessary in order to have the facts of the former trial before him. Mr. George W. Wilson and George Behrens appeared for the motion, and Messrs. Wehle and Jordan in opposition.

SHROUDED IN MYSTERY.

CORONER'S JURY AND THE PIRE MARSHAI UNABLE TO ESTABLISH THE CAUSE OF A PIBE THAT COST FOUR LIVES-RECOMMENDATION TO THE DEPARTMENT OF BUILDINGS.

Coroner Wolfman yesterday held an inquest on the bodies of Charles Butzek, aged seven years; Wilhelmina Butzek, thirty-eight years; Joseph Butzek, fifty-four years, and Mary Koranda, aged seventy years, who were sufficiented at the fire in No. 80 Cannon street on November 14. Isaac Fisher, of Engine Company No. 11, was the first witness. He Engine Company No. 11, was the first witness. He received the signal from station No. 228 at twenty-eight minutes past twelve A. M.; on their arrival they found that the rear rooms of the second story of the four-story brick tenement was ablaze. They got their water on and extinguished the flames. They got their water on and extinguished the flames. The fire had extended up the stairway, burning the hand rails, and passed the third floor without doing any damage. On the fourth floor the firemen found the fire had made considerable headway, burning the rear rooms somewhat and also the front rooms and bedrooms. On this floor the family who were suffocated lived. On passing upstairs they found four persons—two women and two children—suffocated. These were found in the small front bedroom off the hail. Their bodies were considerably burned and they were at once removed. Witness notified the chief of battalion, John W. Miller, of the finding of the bodies, and the chief ordered Hook and Ladder No. It to remove the bodies. Witness was satisfied that the fire originated between the rear room and the sitting room; there was a bed in the latter room; he saw a lamp and some glass in the room; there was no scuttle to the house. In the opinion of the witness, the house was a dangerous one to get out of in case of a fire.

Charles K. Hyde, Chief of the Bureau of Fire Escapes of the Department of Buildings, testified that he visited the house the atternoon following the fire; he found the building burned in the interior; the tenement was jour stories high—about forty feet in height—and was occupied by three families; the law required every building to have a scuttle in the house, it was reported April 17, 1870, to have a scuttle; the fire escape was put up March 20, 1878; The fire had extended up the stairway, burning the fire; he found the building burned in the interior; the tenement was jourstories high—sbout forty feet in height—and was occupied by three families; the law required every building to have a scuttle in the house; it was reported April 17, 1870, to have a scuttle; the fire escape was put up March 20, 1878; the tenement was examined March 20, 1878, and a report was then made that it was supplied with a fire escape and scuttle; that report was furnished by Jeremiah Dixon; there is no record of the date when the building was erected, but it was built before 1860, when the Building Department was organized; on visiting the house after the fire witness found the fire escape in good condition; the ladder passed up and extended to the roof, so that a person ascending by the fire escape could reach the roof.

FIREM FOR LIPE.

George King, of No. 58 Broome street; about midnich he heard a crash and got up; he thought there were thieves in the house and so informed his wife; on investigating the cause of the noise he found there was a fire on the second floor back room; he alarmed his wife and three children, and they escaped from the burning building; he did not see Cohen during the fire; saw him shout one week after the tragedy; witness could hot say if there was a light in Cohen's from.

Fire Masshal Sheldon next testified;—He made an investigation into the cause and origin of the fire; before the danger was discovered; there were at first suspicions of incendiarism, but there was no evidence to establish these suspicions; it was found that their originated on the second floor, rear, which was occupied by a family named Cohen, and that they were all absent at the time the fire broke out. It also appeared that the fire must have burned an hour and a half of two hours before the alarm was sent out.

Solomon Cohen was the next witness called. He resides at No. 69 Cannon street; he moved there in June last; he used to work in his roome with one or two sewing machines; on Novemburned in hour and a half of two hours befo

The wife of the preceding witness corroborated his statoments.

A TRAP.

Henry J. Dudley, Superintendent of Buildings, submitted his report. The building is built of brick, is four stories high, 15 foet wide, 22 feet deep and had but one family dwelling on each floor of three rooms each. The building is provided with a single balcony fire escape in the rear, with a straight ladder attachment. The fire gut possession of the stairs before the people could be aroused, otherwise they could have escaped to the roof and been saved by means of the fire escape, the distance being only five feet to the roof of the sidjoining house; there is no scuttle or ladder in the house, and even if there were they would not have afforded any relief in this case, as the fire had complete control of the stairway in a short time, and the scuttle opening would naturally be from the hallway.

After brief deliberation the jury returned with the following verdict:—That the said people (deceased) came to their death by suffocation during a fire at No. 80 Cannon street, Novembor 14, 1879. The origin of the said fire is unknown to us. We recommend that the Building Department place notices in different languages informing inmates of tenement houses of the location of the fire escape and other means of escape it case of fire."

WILLIAM KELLY'S TRIAL.

WILLIAM KELLY'S TRIAL

In the case of William Kelly, one of the alleged robbers of the Manhattan Bank in this city, now about to be tried in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, before Judge Daniels, but nine jurors have yet been obtained out of 100 summoned. A new pannel of fitty incore was ordered to be summoned for to-day. TWELVE YEARS' IMPRISONMENT.

POISONING BLAIR-THEY HEAR THEIR SEN-TENCE UNMOVED.

administering poison to Charles E. Blair with intent to kill him was resumed yesterday in the Court of to kill him was resumed yesterday in the Court of General Sessions every seat was occupied, the interest in the investigation increasing as the case drew to a close. The prisoners sat together, apparently indifferent to their surroundings. Mr. Hathaway, on behalf of the accused, intimated that if the prosecution did not intend to attack the character of the male prisoner other than what appeared from the testimony no more witnesses would be called for the defence. Assistant District Attornoy Rollins agreed to this and then offered in evidence the letters written by Blair to Mrs. Volkmer, adding that owing to the filthy nature of their contents he would not read them. Mr. Rollins then called Charles Eiffer, a notary, of No. 115 Norfolk street, who testified that on the evening of the 24th ult, the male prisoner called on evening of the 24th ult. the male prisoner called on him and stated that a rich old man from the country had alienated the affections of his wife and asked his advice; Volkmer further told him that he had found advice; Volkmer further told him that he had found his betrayer's letters and photograph and desired to have him punished; the prisoner also recited all the occurrences between Biair and Mary Volkmer on the Boston boat; the witness told Volkmer he had no re-dress at law and that all he could do in the matter was to set a trap, catch the guilty couple in the act of infidelity and have the man arrested; Joseph promised to follow that suggestion and went away.

This closed the case on both sides. Counsel for the defence in suraming up contended that the prosecution had altogether failed to prove the guilt of his clients, urging that they should not be convicted on the evidence of Mary Connolly, a self-confessed criminal. He submitted that owing to her jealousy of Blair's attention to the Volkmers and dislike of her she had herself concected the plot to "dose" the victim. Connolly knew that Blair was rich and had seen him spend money on Mrs. Volkmer while acting in a miserly way to her. She had thereupon, in her jealous rage, determined to administer poison to him. Assistant District Attorney Rollins, in the course of a long address, made the court room ring with peaks of I singhter by the humorous and caustic manner in which he siluded to the defence set up by the accused. The greatest escape, he said, that Blair had in the course of his singular connection with the Volkmers was when he returned from Boston a free man. He had wandered through the streets of that city with "big Mary" on one arm and Mary Volkmer—his little "Swiss Mary," as he called her—two Magdalens, on either arm. Now, had he been with thew when they stole a piano cover, he might have been arrested as an accomplice, and then indeed would the old fool's cup of misery have been filled to overflowing. (Laughter.) The prisoners' counsel had endeavored to show that Mary Connolly in testifying against the Volkmers was actuated by a desire to secape from punishment which was hes due, as an accomplice in the plot to poison the victim: So far as he (Mr. Rollins) was concerned, he wished the law permitted him to send the entire quartet, including Blair and Mary Connolly to State Prison, only he thought Blair would rather profer to be an immate of any institution, however disagreeable, that contained his "dear Mary." (Laughter.) Mr. Rollins then read portions of the letters of Blair to Mary Volkmer, which were not found until after Blair had left the witness' stand, and in reference to which, consequently, he co been fully established, characterizing the deed as a most cowardly, inhuman and base conspiracy.

FOUND GUILTY AND SENTENCED.

Judge Cowing charged the jury, lucidly explaining the law bearing on the case. At half-past five o'clock the jury retired, and after an absence of twenty-five minutes returned with a verdict of guilty. The prisoners heard the announcement unmoved. Their counsel moved an arrest of judgment and for a new trial, both motions being denied. In passing sentence Judge Cowing said that if the prisoners had carried out their intention to poison Blair and kill him they would undoubtedly have been sentenced to die, as their crime possessed all the elements of deliberation and premoditation of murder in the first degree. They had given Blair too much poison and their plot was defeated, nature helping Blair to get rid of the dose. He trusted the sentence he was about to impose would have a beneficial effect—first, as a warning to othors, that fit they administered poison they would be punished as they deserved; and he trusted that it would also be a warning to travollers on steamboats not to take up with chance acquaintances, who might succeed in blassing their lives and reputations. The sentence of the Court was that Joseph Volkmer be confined in the State Prison at hard labor for twelve years, and that Mary Volkmer be sent to the Penicentiary for the same period. The prisoners were then removed.

VAN KLEECK HELD FOR TRIAL.

United States Commissioner Allen, of Brooklyn. rendered his decision yesterday in the matter of the charge of assault with attempt to kill preferred by Alexander Jansen against Chief Mate Mortimer M. Van Kleeck, of the ship Cashmere, during that vessioner finds the defendant guilty of the charge of "assault with a dangerous weapon on the high seas, on an American vessel." Mr. Van Kleeck is therefore held in bail, in the sum of $1,000, to await the action of the Grand Jury. The charge of assault preferred against the mate named, by Albert Mekow, also a member of the crew of the Cashmere, was examined yesterday before the same Commissioner. The complainant alleged that the assault was committed on September 25, and that the mate hit him with some heavy instrument. Henry Neilson, a sailor, testified that Mekow was hit with a belaying pin. The mate testified that he reprimanded Mekow, who was at the wheel, for impudence and negligence. The man said that if he were relieved at the wheel the mate would not dare talk to him as he had done; they thereupon went "forward" and "had it out" in a personal fight: he used no weapon of any kind. Counsel will sum up in the Mekow matter to-day. There will then be three other cases to be heard against Van Kleeck.

DISORDERED BRAINS.

In nearly every instance they had been under care and surveillance at their own homes, and had stolen away—each to indufige the promptings of his own unsettled brain.

It was at the instance of a relative that Policeman Walsh, of the Eighth precinct, took him into custody, and this person stated that his kinsman had been quite violent and defled the efforts of his friends to caim him. His mania was a terribio one. He believed that he was full of glass and that his body was scored and scratched by sharp, gritty atoms of it. He would feel the fragments sticking in his side; he would smart under their lacerations at every step; at every motion of his limbs he seemed to suffer intense agony. In his delirium he was always striving to strip himself of his garments so that he could get at the worrying bits that he fancised were cutting into his flesh. Writhing and groaning he was taken to the station house and thence to court, where he was handed over by the magistrate to the care of the Commissioners of Charities and Correction. Mary McConologue was another sufferer. Her fancies were quite erratic. She believed she could have no rest and was doomed to wander through foreign lands forever. She had got away from and was leaving the neighborhood when apprehended. She waxed violent, gaved and begged to be allowed to perform her manadic mission. She, too, was commisted to the Commissioners care. She had got away from and was leaving the neighborhood when apprehended. A PHENOMENAL PEDESTRIAN.

THE APPARITION THAT STARTLED THE MADISON SQUARE GARDEN AUDIENCE ON SUNDAY NIGHT-HOW IT LOOKED IN COURT. When Justice Bixby took the bench at the Jeffer son Market Police Court yesterday morning an odd looking figure was led out among the first batch of prisoners. A calico dress, much awry and mud be-draubled, covered the new comer as far as the calf of the leg, where a pair of loose hose appeared, terminating in a walking gaiter at one ankle and an cocked on the head and a blue veil withdrawn to re-veal a countenence, made all the more comical by reason of the doleful expression which sat upon it. cocked on the head and a blue veil withdrawn to reveal a countenence, made all the more comical by reason of the doleful expression which sat upon it. It was a face such as no woman since Mother Eve's time ever possessed, its singularity enhanced by a chin covered with abort red hair, with the appearance of having been recently moved down rather than shaved off. When Serguant Keating, who had this fantastic captive in custody, told his story a little light as to the stranger's real character was afforded by a person in court, who, it appears, was responsible for the masquerade, in pursuance of a practical joke. The prisoner was John Dermody, a lemon pedier, forty-dve years old and honoless. One dominant idea that has for years pervaled his brain came into it with the advent of O'Leary, and was fostered by the appearance of other knights of the tan bark. In fact, he feels convinced that he is cut out for a pedestrian. No opportunity was lost by him to make known to his intimates this special ordination. Prior to every important match he has been afoot trying high and low to get a backer.

He was still indulging his pet hobby when he entered Darwin & Kindelon's saloon at No. 567 Third avenue ou Sunday night. There was some talk there of the female walking match at the Madison Square Garden, which afforded him a chance to launch into a description of his own powers of locomotion. Darwin, who heard him, inquired, in a jocular mood, if he was willing to be entered with the contesting females. Dermody, who had taken a couple of glasses of liquor, vowed that nothing would suit him better. His acceptance of the proposition was hailed by a couple of practical jokers on hand as a chance for anusement, and at once a fomale warforbe was procured to furnish the necessary apparel.

With the calice dress, a sash of jacquenet, the long hose and a blue veil Dermody's sex was concessed, and "Barber Pete" hewed off the walker's flowing red beard. Then the party conducted him to Madison Square Garden, hiding his raiment under an o
